

Numbers refer to the numbered extracts, not to pages. Cross references refer to other headings in this index, not to the headings in the body of the work.

The Index of Authorities provides information concerning the authors and publications cited, so as to enable the reader to evaluate the statements included in this source book. The facts are listed principally under the author entries, to which there are cross references from titles. The brief biographical sketches are sometimes incomplete for lack of access to the information. For example, the reference books consulted often omitted scholastic degrees, especially with the names of Europeans, because on the Continent the title Professor indicates a rank higher than Doctor.

Under each author the sources from which he is quoted are classified and the numbers of the extracts are given. A title means a work by that author; "in" preceding the title indicates an article by him in a periodical or a chapter or other subordinate portion written by him in a book; "quoted" refers to an extract entirely by the author as it is quoted in another's book; "quoted by ——" indicates a statement by the author quoted in an extract from another author.

This index includes, without biographical data, authors or editors whose works are used in this book merely as sources of statements by others. It omits all translators except those whose direct statements are used.
